Through a cooperative agreement with the Department of Justice (DOJ), Office of Justice Programs (OJP), Office for Victims of Crime (OVC), Futures Without Violence (FUTURES), seeks to strengthen the capacity of communities to better serve and support victims of hate crime. FUTURES invites applications from community-based organizations to implement field-generated projects to serve and support victims of hate crime in the communities that they serve, thereby promoting awareness, healing, reconciliation, service access and/or resource development.

FUTURES will review submitted applications and select twelve community-based organizations to receive subawards between $50,000 - $125,000 to support field-generated projects to respond to hate crimes in their communities. The selected sites will be known as Community IMPACT sites. As part of this effort, FUTURES will facilitate educational sessions, information exchanges, and provide technical assistance to all Community IMPACT sites.

Eligible Applicants

FUTURES welcomes applications from all eligible community-based organizations. Eligible community-based organizations include:

- Native American tribal organizations (other than Federally recognized tribal governments);
- Nonprofits having a 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, other than institutions of higher education;
- Nonprofits that do not have a 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, other than institutions of higher education; and
- Small businesses.

Eligible community-based organizations may optionally propose projects that seek to partner other organization(s). In the case of partnership proposals, only one eligible community-based organization should apply as lead applicant.

Such organizations may include, but are not limited to, organizations and agencies that support victims and communities impacted by hate crime. Community-based organizations should be members of the communities they plan to serve.

Scope of Proposed Projects

FUTURES will select field-generated community-based projects that are responsive to individuals and groups most often targeted/impacted for hate crime due to race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, perceived immigration status, ancestry, religion, and age.

FUTURES encourages community based, innovative approaches and/or strategies to address hate crimes in the targeted communities. Those efforts would ultimately lead to increased awareness, healing, reconciliation, and/or increased access to available services/resources.

Subaward Information

FUTURES and OVC will review proposals and select twelve community-based organizations to become “Community IMPACT Sites.” Each site will receive a subgrant between $50,000 - $125,000 in total costs support of its proposed field-generated community-based project. Sites can use funding to create new projects – or expand/enhance existing projects – dedicated to addressing hate crimes in their communities.

Subawards are for a 12-18 month period. The project period is expected to start on or before October 1, 2022.

Requirements/Expectations

Subaward recipients will be required to participate in a “learning community” with representatives from other sites. Sites will meet virtually approximately every six weeks, and – at least on one occasion – will meet in person (if public health regulations permit).

Subaward recipients will also be required to collect and maintain data that measures the performance and effectiveness of work under this subaward.

FUTURES will provide technical assistance to Community IMPACT sites to help ensure the success of each site’s local project, including data collection. FUTURES will also track and compile information from selected community-based organizations about their experiences in implementing proposed field-generated projects, and use this information to inform a summary report of replicable strategies, approaches, and models.
